Lewis Kemper

Lewis Kemper will be presenting an online Zoom program about night photography on Thursday, July 2 at 7pm.

Most people put their cameras away after sunset, but night photography offers some wonderful images and opportunities. Night photography requires some special gear – tripod, camera, remote shutter release or intervalometer, bubble level, white balancing tools, and/or CamRanger. Lewis will introduce you to these tools and talk about techniques for making night images that include shooting stars, cityscapes, HDR, high ISO, light painting, creating motion with zoom, panoramas and more. Besides just discussing taking night pictures, Lewis will share techniques in the digital darkroom to best bring out the nuances of night images. Learn how to make stars pop, keep the highlights from clipping, do local white balance corrections and more. Don't ever be afraid of the dark again!

Recommened to visit his web site:

If you sign up for his mailing list you will get some great videos and information on his workshops and classes.
