Thursday December 3rd Program by Valerie Jardin 5-7 PM. on Zoom

The Sierra Camera Club presents Valerie Jardin on Thursday, December 3 at 5:00 pm PST. This will be an online presentation. Mark your calendars now! A big thank you goes out to Kathleen Grady for putting this program together for the Sierra Camera Club.

Valérie Jardin is a French photographer, currently residing in the United States. Valérie is known internationally through her workshops. When she is not teaching others the art of street photography and visual storytelling, Valérie is a prolific author, a speaker, and a podcast producer of the bi-weekly show Hit The Streets with Valérie Jardin. She is also an official Fujifilm X-Photographer. Valérie is a gear minimalist. She believes in the power of limitations of one camera, one lens and making decisions before you press the shutter to get the shot in camera with as little post processing as possible. She lives and breathes in pixels.

Travel Photography: See Beyond The Postcard And Make Your Own Iconic Photographs

The goal of this presentation is to help you put more intent in your travel photography and learn to think like the editor of a travel magazine. Make more meaningful and unique photographs that you can truly call your own.

Chasing Light. Telling Stories.

Photography changed my life. The day I picked up a camera I became a storyteller. I learned to see the extraordinary in everyday life. And my passion for documenting humankind has led me to find beauty in the most unlikely of places. As a visual storyteller, photographic images are how I tell these stories. Chasing light is my desire, my obsession, my addiction.

Chasing Light.

The camera is an extension of my vision. It captures what I see. Images help me tell the story of the light I chase in the urban landscapes I visit. Every time I make an image, I capture a moment in time that will never occur again. Each frame I shoot becomes extraordinary in its uniqueness. The people. The architecture. The light. The shadows. When they come together, they form the stories of the cities that I want to show my students.

Telling Stories.

My love of humankind drives me to wander the city streets tirelessly to capture the candid moments of daily life. These are the everyday moments most people would not see. These are the moments I want to find and tell.

I thrive on searching and waiting for just the right moment when a story unfolds in a single frame; where context and subject intersect with me there, honored to tell its story to the world. And I am happiest when I get lost on purpose, and let the city reveal its magic to me. The urban landscape is always surprising me with the new stories that unfold throughout the day and into the night.
